

District 9 seeks court ruling

By Bill Milligan
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — District 9 attorneys have asked the Third Judicial Circuit Court to decide if it has been guilty of wrongdoing in the conduct of its closed meetings. Since January, board member David Partney has repeatedly complained the board has violated the Illinois Open Meetings Act. Some matters talked about in closed sessions should have been open to the public, Partney said. In a suit filed Monday against Partney, board attorney William Schooley has asked the courts to issue an opinion on the rights and duties of the district with regard to the act.

The Open Meetings Act allows public bodies, such as the school board, to discuss specific topics during closed sessions.

Those topics are real estate acquisition, litigation, collective bargaining, employment or dismissal of employees and testimony or complaints lodged against employees or officers of the school district.

At conflict are board members' interpretations of the act, according to the suit filed April 21. In a 5-0 vote April 15, the board directed Schooley to do whatever is necessary to stop the controversy. Absent were members Partney and Monroe Worthen.

"I think we have a duty to the public to put this before a judge," board President Dewey Melton said at the April 15 meeting. "I do not believe we've done wrong."

"I'm sorry Dave (Partney) has to be named in this suit, but because of his allegations I feel an obligation to take this step," Melton said.

State's Attorney Dick Allen appointed Bruce Goldstein, an Edwardsville attorney who serves as an assistant, to investigate Partney's allegations in late March. Goldstein rendered an opinion April 10 that the board broke the law. He suggested the parties involved should work out a compromise.

"I guess they don't want to compromise," Partney said Thursday. "It's a shame. I brought up the issue because, as a board member, I felt it was my duty. Now, they're using taxpayers'

GRANITE CITY — Following is the sequence of events leading to a suit filed Monday by District 9 attorney William Schooley.

The action is the most recent in a series of events which began at the board's Nov. 12, 1985, meeting, when it discussed administrative vacancies in executive session.

Discussed during executive sessions on Nov. 12, Nov. 26, Dec. 17 and Jan. 7 was a four-page memorandum from Superintendent Max Redmond. The memo outlined procedures for filling six vacancies created by the retirement of principals and administrators, according to a copy of the document acquired by the Press-Record-Journal.

The board met for four hours and eight minutes in open session and 14 hours in executive session from November 1985 through January 1986.

The board's suit outlines what has taken place since Jan. 7.

At the Jan. 21 meeting, Partney read a statement claiming the board had violated the Open Meetings Act by discussing Redmond's suggestions in executive session.

Citing a report from an attorney for the Illinois Association of School Boards, Partney said the act prohibited discussion of hiring processes in executive session.

"If the Open Meetings Act is not complied with in the future, I will file an immediate complaint with the Madison County State's Attorney's office," Partney said.

Partney's statements drew criticism from board member Monroe Worthen.

"If Mr. Partney is trying to set himself up as an example, he should remember his actions in 1983 when he was president of the board," Worthen said.

Board members then voted unanimously to accept a motion by Partney that the act be adhered to in the future.

At a special meeting March 13, Partney voted against discussing administrative job descriptions in closed session.

He said that unless the board was talking about "a particular person," replacement procedures should be discussed in front of the public.

Partney asked the state's attorney's office to investigate board compliance with the Illinois Open Meetings Act after the March 25 meeting. At that meeting, the board again discussed filling the vacancies and the district's proposed budget.

Partney charged job descriptions and a tentative budget for the 1986-87 school year were not proper topics for executive session.

"They (the state's attorney's staff) never gave me a ruling on the budget thing," Partney said.

According to the board's complaint, filed April 21, Redmond wanted to discuss administrative job descriptions during the March 13 meeting.

Assistant State's Attorney Bruce Goldstein rendered an opinion April 10 that the Open Meetings Act intended board members to discuss creation of job descriptions in public session.

Goldstein's opinion was sent to Schooley, who forwarded it to board members April 12 with an attached note.

"As a practical matter I do not recall the board ever discussing 'job descriptions' in open or closed session," Schooley wrote.

Goldstein was unaware a suit had been filed by the board, but said it would not halt any future decision by the state's attorney's office to file civil action against District 9.

"Right now, we're waiting to see what happens," Goldstein said.

EDWARDSVILLE — A conviction on two bribery counts was handed down at 1:30 p.m. Friday against James Barton, former Madison County supervisor of assessments.

He was found innocent of a conspiracy charge during the jury's 8½ hours of deliberations.

BARTON, 63, of Granite City, could be sentenced to three to seven years on each bribery count. No sentencing date was set.

Barton was declared guilty of forwarding a $1,000 bribe. The bribe was given to Barton in 1982 by William Nichols. Nichols hoped Independent restaurants an endangered species?

Restaurateurs discuss mutual problems

MADISON — Higher insurance costs and chain competition are hurting independent restaurants, but owners have served up a response.

Madison County's independent restaurateurs have formed the Southern Illinois Independent Restaurant Association.

Every business has ups and downs, but the association could help solve problems, said Tom Voloski, association member and owner of Voloski's Restaurant, Madison.

"The pie is being sliced too many ways," said Tom Rousto, owner of Rousto's Sirloin Strip in Collinsville. "The chains are killing us."

Rousto called the first association meeting at his restaurant on Illinois 157 and the approximately 100 Madison County restaurant owners were invited. Last year there were 170 independent restaurants, he said.

"How many of the 100 left will be here next year? I predict some won't," he said. "It's a tough business."

Higher insurance premiums have struck hard at independent restaurant owners, he said. An owner of three restaurants paid $18,000 18 months ago; now the premium is $60,000, he said.

"The company that I used to have insurance with wouldn't insure us here. In fact, they dropped restaurants altogether," Voloski said.

"My insurance company said that if my rates go up only 50 percent I'll be lucky," Rousto said.

"If my insurance goes up 50 percent, I'll have to do a lot of soul-searching. How do you handle it?"

Signs are this will be a better year than last for independent restaurants, Rousto said. He cited lower gasoline and interest rates as helpful factors.

But Rousto still thinks rates independent restaurant is endangered.

"There was a time six years ago when we would do $1,000 to $1,500 per breakfast on Sunday," he said. "Now if we do $700 we're really pleased."

Combined advertising campaigns and discussions of ways to deal with mutual problems are what some members hope to get out of the association.

The Madison County restaurateurs have held two organizational meetings. Independent restaurant owners from St. Clair County are invited to join.

GRANITE CITY — Students sneak away during lunch period to find a secluded place to smoke a "joint."

An addict breaks into a home to steal drug money.

It happens in cities across the country, including Granite City.

But two members of the Granite City Police Department have made a dent in drug traffic here.

Working under cover since Jan. 7, Detective Richard Schardan and Sgt. David Ruebhausen have made 118 drug-related arrests.

Sunday focus rests netting approximately 111 pounds of marijuana.

The idea for the drug investigation unit came from Police Chief Bill Harris.

"We were receiving many complaints from different people in the area about drugs," Harris said. "The policemen were chosen for the unit because they were former drug agents with several years of experience, Harris said.

THIS EXPERIENCE has paid off, he said.

"My goal was 100 arrests and they came up with 118," he said.

This figure, Harris said, represents 23.2 percent of all non-traffic arrests made by the Granite City Police Department to date.

The marijuana seized by the officers has a value of $186,912. This is based on a price of $4 per gram, he said.

ALSO SEIZED were such drugs as cocaine, amphetamines, barbiturates and codeine.

The undercover officers also seized three handguns and two vehicles involved in drug deals. One of these cars is now city property, Harris said.

Part of the drug unit was to identify pushers and dealers, especially those who deal on high school grounds.

Four dealers were arrested on school grounds while possessing or selling drugs. One student has been expelled for the rest of the school year and many others suspended in the almost four months of investigation.

"THE STREETS of Granite City are now dry," Harris said, meaning there is not a lot of marijuana available.

"It used to be we could drive down the streets and see people smoking marijuana in their cars," he said. "Now they're too scared."

He emphasized this is only a temporary condition, and can only be kept "in check" by strict enforcement.

The two officers are doing the job.

"THEY DID A FANTASTIC job and I can't emphasize it enough," Harris said, "and all in 71 working days."

Though the drug unit's investigation has put a damper in the city's drug dealing, the abuse continues.

Harris realized that when he also saw the need for a drug abuse program.

The drug abuse program is presented by Schardan and is available for civic organizations, Harris said.

ALSO PREPARED were 1,100 copies of a book titled Drugs of Abuse. The book describes and illustrates such things as the different types of drugs, jargon used by drug users and dealers, and what parents can look for if they expect their children are using drugs.

He said anyone interested in the program can call the Granite City Police Department Investigative Unit at 876-9027.

With men on the streets working to stop drug traffic, and with a drug education program to help the public, Harris hopes to keep Granite City from "developing serious drug problems."

Vickers won't step down

VENICE — A former employee of the Venice School District, who said he is concerned about conditions in the school system, called for the resignation of Superintendent of Schools Robert N. Vickers at Thursday night's board meeting.

"I want to make a recommendation to Mr. Vickers. I think that you ought to resign so that our kids can get a better education. If not, I will make it my business to see that you are replaced," Salmond said.

"I FEEL NO ANIMOSITY or malice toward Eddie Lee and I will still try to help him overcome his frustration, but I say 'No' to his recommendation," Vickers replied. "He cannot tell this superintendent what to do."

"If he can convince the board to buy out the two years remaining on my contract, instead of me retiring next year as I plan to do, this would make me happy and I could leave here tonight."

"But I think he (Salmond) is going to be frustrated again as I am confident the board will act in the best interest of the school district and not for the one, two or three people here tonight," the school superintendent said.

"I TAUGHT EDDIE LEE in school and I had him as a district employee. I could almost predict what his actions would be tonight."

"He wants to lash out at somebody or in some way because he is frustrated and it is important for him to have an audience and the newspaper here," Vickers said.

The confrontation at the meeting partially resulted from an exchange of letters in the Granite City Press-Record-Journal, starting with a letter from Salmond April 9 and a reply from Vickers April 20.

"The way I constructed the letter didn't call any names," Salmond said. "I did question why we didn't have a live-in (within the district) superintendent or an assistant superintendent."

"I WORKED HERE close to nine years and I am trying to participate as a taxpayer and a concerned citizen. I was waiting for a reply to my letter from the board, but instead I get one from Vickers."

Salmond, a former janitor in the Venice schools, alleged there were instances of weapons and drugs being carried by students and employees.

He questioned securing exterior doors with chains, disagreed with personnel assignments and said there were unresponsive teachers and school board members.

"HALF-TRUTHS, innuendoes and falsehoods" were contained in the letter, said Vickers, calling it "sour grapes" from a former employee who resigned and then

Don't ask that question

Let the school board issue die, a woman called to tell the paper Thursday afternoon.

In her opinion, enough has been said about the issue of the selection of four new principals for the district. She objected that this paper offers a chance for readers to call in and give their views on the matter at 452-0222.

In her opinion, the issue is whether or not the school board had the right to choose the four persons selected. Since they had that right, there's nothing more to be said.

In our opinion, the school board's right to choose the four principals is not the issue. We concede they have that right.

The way we see it, the board allowed a committee to conduct interviews and make recommendations on appointments. They did that job. The board said all things were about equal, but they changed one recommendation.

If someone recommended by the committee had some major failing, the board would have been justified in the change. But that is certainly not the case.

To us the issue is one of morale.

The board's move provides no incentive for teachers and administrators to sit on future board committees. They, too, could spend weeks on a project and have the board dismiss it.

Furthermore, at the board's April 15 meeting, it disbanded the committee and decided not to use it any more.

We believe at least some teachers are upset about the issue. One teacher sent us two sharp editorial cartoons on the subject; we printed one April 17.

We have one opinion and the woman has her opinion on the selection process. Her opinion is enough has been said on the issue. Perhaps she is right.

If she is, don't call 452-0222.

Arabs refuse Khadafy

WASHINGTON — Libyan dictator Moammar Khadafy tried in vain to find an Arab government that could successfully act as an intermediary with the Reagan administration in the weeks before the United States resorted to military action.

First he tried Algeria. He was rebuffed. Then he tried Saudi Arabia. How many other Arab nations he tried is not clear, but he finally settled on Morocco, which is supposedly allied to Libya in a "united" Arab state, and which is the only Arab nation for millions in economic support since the paper merger.

Unlike the other Arab nations Khadafy approached, Morocco dutifully tried to intercede with the State Department on Libya's behalf. Foggy Bottom coldly rejected the overture. As a high-level State Department official said of Khadafy by way of explanation for the stiff-arm: "We do not trust him."

Khadafy's effort to get Algeria as its go-between with the White House involved a virtually unprecedented display of accommodation by the egomaniacal Libyan leader. He flew to a remote area of Algeria for a secret meeting with President Chadli Bendjedid in January and asked him to lobby for Libya in Washington.

But the Algerian president was reluctant to be seen as too close to Khadafy. He rejected the Libyan request and reportedly asked: "Why not try the Moroccans?"

State Department sources told our associate Lucette Lagnado that Khadafy has been trying for years to negotiate with Reagan, but that his feelings have been rejected because of Khadafy's total lack of credibility in Washington.

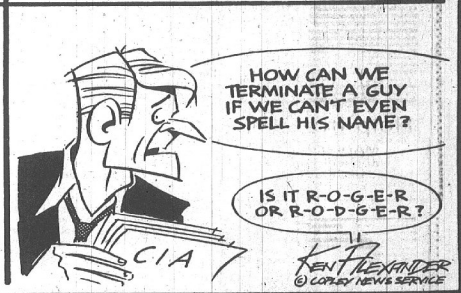

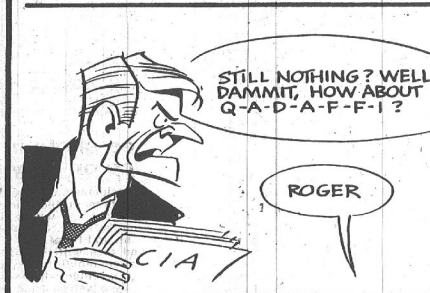

Weekly Special

Jack Anderson

The Libyan is an expert at "getting people lulled to sleep" with promises of peace and sweet reasonableness and then "doing whatever he pleases," a State Department official explained. For that reason, he said, "We have made it very clear: We have not allowed anyone to act as intermediaries."

In a related development, State Department sources said they are delighted at the satisfaction over the U.S. air strike expressed privately by Arab governments that publicly denounced it. The only regret passed on behind the scenes by these governments is that Khadafy himself survived the U.S. attack, the sources said.

In that respect, the reaction of two Arab states in particular has given the White House cause for satisfaction. Neither Iraq nor Tunisia issued even perfunctory public statements condemning the U.S. military strike.

Law Day a patriotic holiday

Next Thursday, May 1, is Law Day, a patriotic holiday. President Dwight D. Eisenhower first established Law Day in 1958. In a presidential proclamation, he explained the purpose of Law Day was to remind Americans of their great legal heritage of liberty and equality in our democracy.

In 1961, both houses of Congress declared May 1 the annual observance of Law Day. The joint resolution of Congress proclaimed May 1 a "special day of celebration to remind Americans of their appreciation of their liberty and the reaffirmation of their loyalty to the United States of America."

The purpose of Law Day is to call attention to our proud legal heritage in this country. Like most holidays, it is a reminder.

It reminds us of the enormous role the law plays in our society, the protections it affords every citizen, the rights it guarantees, and the duties it requires of each of us.

Across the nation, lawmakers, lawyers and elected officials celebrate Law Day. In recent years, President Ronald Reagan has issued presidential proclamations regarding Law Day, and has hosted White House ceremonies for the judiciary.

State legislators and United States congressmen and senators lecture audiences in various states on May 1. State and local bar associations compose of lawyers practicing and living in those geographic areas, sponsor a wide variety of commemorative events on May 1.

In observance of Law Day 1986, the Tri-City Bar Association is offering a free service to senior citizens in the Tri-Cities.

On May 1, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., two lawyers will be in the Granite City Township Building on Delmar Avenue. Each of the two lawyers will provide 15 minutes of free consultation to senior citizens who wish to talk with them. We hope to have enough volunteer lawyers to provide shifts of two different lawyers each hour of the morning.

Senior citizens who wish to take advantage of this service are requested to bring all documents pertaining to their legal problem or question with them to the township building. Because other groups need the township building, all consultations must end by noon.

From Connecticut to Hawaii, local bar associations celebrate Law Day with events ranging from five-kilometer road races to two-hour luncheon banquets to mock trials in high schools.

The Tri-City Bar Association offers something new: a service for the retired persons of the community, on May 1, Law Day.

What's a sport and what's a game?

What is my job as a sports reporter?

The answer lies in the job title itself. I am supposed to report on sports. Sounds simple enough. And I've never had any problem with that.

Until the other day, that is. Driving into work at 8 a.m., I heard the honorable J.C. Corcoran of KSHI Radio in St. Louis discussing an issue of vital importance with his fellow inmates in the "Morning Zoo."

What's the difference between sports and games?

"I only caught the end of this high-level discussion, but it made me think twice. One of the guys said that sports are those types of competition pitting a group of people against another group of people (i.e. team sports)."

Games, he said, were those where individuals competed against one another, one on one.

Well, that's a good differentiation, but it seems that Corcoran had an even better definition.

He thought sports were those things which require a great deal of athletic ability to participate in. He obviously was thinking of ac-

Columnists' Club

By Dave Whaley

ivities such as baseball, football, hockey and basketball. There you go. The four major team sports.

But also included in that would be soccer and, I would think, tennis. You have to have coordination and athletic ability to go at it in those games.

But here was one of the other guys trying to convince Corcoran that golf was a sport that fit in with the rest.

No way.

"I do not think golf is particularly exciting. In fact, it bores me to death. But I will not try to take anything away from the many lush enthusiasts. It's good recreation and I'm sure every man who does it has a good time."

But I can't classify it with other sports. Many golfers are good athletes. But it doesn't take a great athlete to be a good golfer. Go out to the local fairways and take a look at some of the people golfing. A lot of them wouldn't survive on a basketball court very long.

Of course, not every "sport" is always a sport, according to Corcoran's definition.

Example: softball. Somebody asked J.C. if he thought softball was a sport, because, they said, some of the guys in those beer leagues don't exactly look like Joe Dimaggio.

Corcoran responded that softball is a sport "when it is played competitively."

I'm not sure he worded it exactly right, because the beer league guys are very competitive, no doubt about it. But I think he meant that, when softball is played by people who can really play it well, then it is a sport.

Fast-pitch softball, for instance, as played by the girls at Granite City, Madison and Venice high schools, is a sport. The girls are well-coached and have a good idea of what they are doing out there.

That is a sport.

Slow-pitch softball, as played by my church league team in Alton, is, well, I'm not even sure we can be held enough to call that a game, much less sport. It sometimes looks more like a demolition derby.

That brings us to auto racing and horse racing. A.J. Foyt's car has to be a lot better athlete than A.J. Foyt. Eddie Arcaro's horse has to be a little better athlete than Eddie Arcaro, although Eddie needs more pure athletic ability than A.J. does.

Well, now that we have that out of the way, it's time for me to return to the sports page. I'm sure I've made golfers, beer league softball players and race car drivers mad at me. In the meantime, we'll continue to run news about golf, beer league softball and auto racing on the sports page when we get it. So I guess we haven't solved anything in our little time together here.

By the way, how about Jack Nicklaus winning his sixth Masters recently? How about a vote for him as ATHLETE of the Year?

There's a similarity to Cruse and Reagan

The mayor gets a great deal of coverage, two Granite City aldermen remarked a few days back.

They were right. The mayor gets his face in front of the public more often than any other city official, and his name is more often mentioned than any other.

To compare great things to small, Ronald Reagan's face is regularly seen on the front pages of newspapers and magazines, and on the nightly news. The reason is that he is this nation's single most powerful leader and his comments become very important, perhaps more important than they should be since most of his actions mean nothing unless supported by the Congress.

Though their views may differ, Cruse and Reagan are similar from a press viewpoint. He is this city's single most powerful leader and his comments become very important, perhaps more important than they should be since most of his actions mean nothing unless supported by the Congress.

unless supported by the City Council.

But, because he is the chief city official, we pay attention to him.

When an ordinance or other issue arises, the mayor's support is often crucial to passage or failure. We naturally seek his comments. But we seek comments from key persons who tell us they've got a different perspective than the mayor's. We aim at fairness.

Aside from pure politics, the mayor is also highly visible through his community involvement. Notably, he attends many of the business ribbon-cutting ceremonies sponsored by the Tri-City Area Chamber of Commerce. When we take those pictures to help boost area businesses, he's in them.

Another way the mayor gets into the paper is through proclamations he signs at the request of civic groups that want everyone to know National This Or That Week is approaching. The group takes a photo and sends it the hometown newspaper. We run it in keeping with our dedication to community journalism.

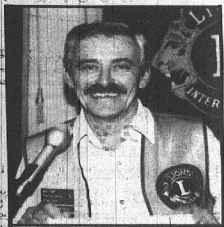

Admittedly, the mayor gets a great deal of coverage through his position as mayor. So did the former mayor and so will the next mayor, no matter who they are.

I guess having the constant focus of the hometown press is just one of the advantages and disadvantages of being mayor.

Volunteers praised at Venice-Lincoln

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

Awards were presented Monday to 10 volunteers who tutor in the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center's adult literacy program.

The presentations were made during a "coffee klutch" held at the center on S. 4th Street, Venice.

THE SPECIAL PROGRAM marked National Volunteer Awareness Week and was hosted by Shirley Blasingame of the VLTC staff for members of the Social Service Network.

A tour of the school's facilities was conducted by Blasingame and refreshments were served.

Volunteer tutors honored for contributing 50 hours or more to VLTC students were:

Vi Podnar, Mark Clark, Joann Macko, Peggy Dayton, Mary Weldon, Janis Avants, Debra Rabey, Dorothy Lloy, Wanda Aiken and Ronald Gibson.

WADE JAMES, president of Coordinated Youth Services, also presented plaques of appreciation to Carolyn Smoot and Dorothy Lijewski.

Both Coordinated Youth Services and Venice-Lincoln Technical Center are members of the Social Service Network.

The literacy program at the Venice adult education-vocational center has served 26 non-readers since its inception a year ago and is steadily growing.

VLTC VOLUNTEERS have tutored over 1,100 hours in helping adults achieve a functionally literate reading level, which is estimated to be 5th grade or above, according to Dr. Alice Purdes, coordinator of the Venice-Lincoln literacy program.

The tutors come from many walks of life, including persons who are retired, bookkeepers, nurses and senior citizens, Purdes said.

ANY ADULT INTERESTED in learning to read, or persons wishing to volunteer their time to tutor are invited to call Venice-Lincoln Technical Center at 874-7792 during regular school hours, Monday through Friday.

Help-in reading or tutoring also can be received by calling the Illinois Literacy Hotline at 1-800-321-9311, she said.

The Social Service Network will hold its next meeting on May 5 with the Bensenville Home Society, 903 N. 2nd St., Edwardsville, as host agency.

MRS. HELEN QUAD will speak on the adoption services of Oriental children sponsored by her agency. Robert Deem and Berna Patrick will address network members on May 19 at the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services, 3675 Namecki Road.

The Educational Opportunity Center will serve as host agency. Persons interested in attending any of the meetings may call Jack Strader, 877-0753, or Lillian Douglas, 876-2383, for further information.

Rabies shots will cost $8 for each cat and dog. Canine distemper shots will be $14 and cat distemper shots will cost $9.

Other types of vaccinations for pets also will be available, Dr. Allan R. Spector said.

Mammography screening will help combat the leading killer

Appointments are now being made for mammography screening for breast disease, to be conducted by St. Elizabeth Medical Center May 5 through June 30.

SEMC has the state-of-the-art mammography system, which provides high-quality, high-sensitivity images with minimal radiation exposure, a spokesman said.

The mammography procedure is so sensitive, it is possible to detect tumors in the breast two to three years before they can be felt by touch or symptoms occur.

A screening program, recently offered to hospital employees, received an excellent response, according to George Garrigus, director of radiology at SEMC.

He attributed the favorable response to a growing national awareness of breast disease, the low cost/high quality program that is offered, and the professionalism, care and compassion of those performing the procedures.

Of the 150 women screened, 11 required further attention by their physician, Garrigus said.

Patients may be self-referred, but must furnish the name of a physician at the time of scheduling and be 35 years of age or older. Results will be forwarded to the physician within 24 hours. No results will be given directly to the patient.

The radiology director also said it is preferable for a patient to have been examined by her physician within the past year. Anyone with a physician's referral will be given priority in the scheduling process.

The procedure, which takes 15 minutes, is done in a private setting by female technologists.

Free information on breast self-exams, breast cancer and other forms of cancer will be distributed at the appointment time. Special instructions concerning preparation for testing will be given when an appointment is made.

The procedure is relatively painless, but may cause some mild discomfort, as it requires that the breast tissue be compressed in order to give the x-ray image an overall equal density. This decreases the radiation dosage and increases the sensitivity for interpretation by radiologists.

The mammography testing is being offered for $55, which includes the radiologist's interpretation fee. The usual charge for this procedure is $95 to $100, Garrigus said.

"The main purpose of the program is to provide the community with a low-cost means of early detection," Garrigus said.

Breast cancer is the most common form of cancer and is considered the main cause of death among American women of various age groups.

Breast cancer cannot be prevented, but it is almost always curable when detected early using such techniques as regular breast examination and low-dose mammography.

Early treatment can reduce the mortality rate from breast cancer by 30 to 40 percent. But only about 10 percent of all women regularly get mammograms, it is being pointed out.

The American Cancer Society recommends that baseline mammograms be performed at or above the age of 35. The ACS also suggests that women 20 to 40 years old receive a physician breast exam every three years and do a self-exam regularly.

Women over 50 should have an annual mammography and a physician's examination. If there is a personal or family history of breast cancer, a woman should consult her physician about how often she should have an exam and mammography before age 40, Garrigus said.

For information or to make an appointment, the Radiology Department can be called at 738-3181.

Public Forum set in GC on May 8

GRANITE CITY — A "Public Forum" for city residents will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 8, at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

"It's an opportunity for the citizens of Granite City to speak and be heard," Cruse said.

The public is invited to attend the forum.

Children's weight classes offered

"Weigh to Go," a six-week program for overweight children, ages 8 to 11, and their parents, will be offered on Wednesdays, May 7 through June 11, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

The program offers counseling in successful weight control methods that combine good nutrition and physical activity. Parents attend separate classes offered at the same time as the children's classes.

All classes are conducted by registered dietitians. The cost of the program is $25, a 50 percent reduction from the previous cost.

For information or to register, Nutrition Education Services can be called at 738-3157.

Mock trial, career talks on Law Day

Seventh grade gifted classes from Coolidge Junior High School will present a mock trial at the Madison County Courthouse in Edwardsville on Law Day U.S.A., Thursday, May 1.

The presentation will be the culmination of two months' study of the nation's legal system.

The trial will last from 8:30 until 11:30 a.m., Edward M. Schroeder of the Coolidge faculty said.

"There will be a full jury, witnesses, surprise witnesses, lawyers, a defendant, and courtroom outbursts. Arthur L. Greenwood, an attorney from Alton, will act as the presiding judge."

"At no time has the defense been aware of what the prosecution is planning, and vice versa. The jurors have been sequestered from the classes during the entire preparation, they will hear the case for the first and only time on May 1," Schroeder said.

"This trial will concern a murder case, loosely based on the fairy tale, 'Little Red Riding Hood.' It should be emphasized, however, that this project has never been intended to be a piece of fluff or a cute, cleverly calculated costume play. Yet, there will be moments of spontaneity that may produce humor and/or surprise."

"Only the story line of the fairy tale has been used to give the students a familiar footing on which to build their cases."

Members of the Tri-City Bar Association will be at the Granite City Township Building, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Law Day. Senior citizens may confer, free of charge, for up to 15 minutes with a lawyer on solving a particular legal problem they may have.

Thursday's schedule at the courthouse in Edwardsville also will feature:

— Criminal justice career day interviews, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

— A Madison County Bar Association mock trial, 10:30 a.m.

— Courthouse tours starting at 11 a.m., including the Madison County jail, led by Sheriff Emil Toffant, and the county clerk's office, led by County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

— A K-9 police dog demonstration, 1 p.m., presented by the Edwardsville police.

Wilson PTA elects officers

GRANITE CITY — The Wilson School PTA held an election of officers at its April meeting.

Bob Picklerell was elected as 1986-87 president, Pat Pitman vice president, Wila Myers secretary and Debbie Hollis treasurer.

The Wilson School carnival will be held on Friday, May 9.

To graduate

Deborah Milton of Granite City is one of 65 seniors who will receive her nursing diploma from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing on May 16. Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Milton.

The graduation ceremonies will be held at the First Presbyterian Church in Kirkwood.

Since the first class of nine seniors graduated in 1892, more than 2,900 nurses have completed the program.

St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing is located on Conway Road in Chesterfield.

"Law Day U.S.A. was conceived in 1957 by Charles S. Rhine, a Washington D.C. lawyer who was then president of the American Bar Association, the national voluntary organization of the legal profession in the United States," it was noted by Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen, sponsor of Law Day.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower established Law Day by a proclamation in 1958.

"On that occasion, he said, 'It is fitting that the American people should remember with pride and vigilantly guard the great heritage of liberty, justice and equality under the law. It is our moral and civic obligation as free men and as Americans to preserve and strengthen that great heritage,'"

"In 1961, the first day of May was set aside by a joint resolution of Congress as a 'special day of celebration by the American people in appreciation of their liberties and the reaffirmation of their loyalty to the United States of America,' and as an occasion for 'rededication to the ideals of equality and justice under laws.'"

"The purpose of Law Day is to call the attention of every American citizen to both the principles and the practice of American law and justice," Allen continued.

"It is a day to reflect on our legal heritage, the role of the law in our society, and the rights we enjoy under our Constitution."

"It is also a day for all citizens to consider their duties, such as:

"1. To be informed on government and community affairs.
"2. To support and encourage efforts to modernize our courts."

"3. To vote in elections.

"4. To obey and respect the law."

"5. To support these institutions and persons charged with law enforcement."

"6. To respect the rights of others."

"7. To practice and teach the principles of good citizenship in our homes."

"That Law Day U.S.A. occupies only a single calendar day is merely symbolic. It is a reminder that while the principles embodied in the observances are constant, their vitality cannot be taken for granted, but must be nurtured and sustained by every citizen, every day of the year."

On Law Day '86, the criminal justice career day is expected to attract 300 high school students from throughout Madison County. Each student will have the opportunity to sit down and talk first-hand with any one of 22 criminal justice system professionals at the Madison County Courthouse.

Departments and agencies involved in Law Day include the 3rd Judicial Circuit, public defender, circuit clerk, probation department, Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation, court bailiff, court reporter, Illinois Department of Corrections, FBI, Illinois State Police, Illinois Secretary of State Police and Illinois Bureau of Scientific Services.

A REMINDER FROM THE LAW TODAY

Much of the information put out about the so-called medical malpractice "crisis" has left people with the impression that doctors and other medical personnel are expected to be perfect. This is not the law, and it never has been. Under our law, most people are charged with the responsibility of exercising ordinary care in what they do as they go about their lives. This simply means that they are expected to act as a reasonable person doing the same activities would act. The rule is not any different for those who practice medicine; they are only required to act as reasonable doctors would act under the circumstances; and a malpractice suit will only be successful when they don't exercise this degree of care. In spite of this fair and equitable application of the rule of ordinary care, legislation has been passed which makes it much harder and more expensive for the injured person to even receive a jury trial in a malpractice action. While complaints by medical people and insurance companies may cause us alarm about the costs of medical care, shouldn't we be even more alarmed about legislation which threatens to take the constitutional right to a jury trial away from the working man and woman? We will be discussing this and other relevant topics on this Tuesday's program.

HONORS SERVICE: Family and friends of Bea James gathered at Coolidge Junior High School April 16 to plant a pin oak tree in her honor. James was a special education teacher's aide for more than 12 years with District 9. James died recently of cancer. Steve Baleh (foreground), director of the special education department, dedicated the tree in her honor. Donations from school employees purchased the tree. The memorial fund was organized by Wanda Hubbell.

direction of Carole Ryan, music teacher; hot dogs for lunch; listening to the baseball game during art class; and playing softball during physical education class.

In addition, the Prather PTA provided a bag of popcorn for each child to enjoy during the ball game, and all students, teachers and staff wore their Cardinal T-shirts and caps.

Panel would repeal auto exhaust testing

Legislation to repeal the vehicle emission testing program slated to start in parts of Madison and St. Clair counties and the Chicago metro area cleared an Illinois Senate committee April 22.

On the eve of the start of the controversial program May 1, the Senate Executive Committee approved the repeal on a 13-3 vote and sent it on to the full Senate for consideration.

Sens. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, and Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, both voted in committee for the repeal.

The panel took the action despite continued warnings by representatives of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) and Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) that canceling the program now could result in the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in highway funds for the Metro East and Chicago.

The agencies cited a potential loss of about $600 million in federal highway funding if the U.S. EPA imposed sanctions, as it has indicated it would do if the program were repealed.

In addition, the state could still be held liable for paying more than $35 million to the private contractor, Systems Control Inc. of California, that won the bid to construct testing stations and operate the five-year program, Frank Sherman of the IEPA testified.

Sherman said there is a possibility the federal IEPA may further strengthen ozone pollution standards; the state estimates the vehicle tailpipe testing program would reduce pollution in that area by at least 25 percent.

The chief sponsor of the repeal bill, Sen. Beverly Fawell, R-Glen Ellyn, argued there had only been four days last year in which the Chicago area exceeded federal pollution limits. She argued the testing program, which will be funded through state gasoline tax revenues, is unnecessary and too expensive.

She contended proceeding with the repeal legislation would also help to get the attention of officials in Washington to consider whether the program is necessary in Illinois. She said she had been in contact with the White House on the issue.

"We should keep the pressure on Washington," she argued.

The Illinois Manufacturers Association registered in opposition to the repeal bill. That organization fears more restrictive pollution control measures would be required of industry if the vehicle testing program is abandoned.

According to the IEPA, there were three days in 1985 (two at Wood River and one at a Maryville testing station) in which the ozone standard was exceeded in Madison County.

However, the federal standard requires no more than one day over a three-year period, according to Terry Switzer of the IEPA. He said the Wood River station had 13 days in 1983 exceeding the ozone standard, as well as two in 1984.

Sherman said the IEPA is currently checking the new testing stations at two locations in Madison and seven of the planned 15 stations in the Chicago area to be sure their equipment is operating properly before the first batch of notices would go out. The agency earlier indicated it would be mailed starting last week.

There is no charge for the tests, but vehicle owners will be responsible for the cost of repairing or maintaining their vehicles, such as having tuneups, to bring the vehicles into compliance.

Computer printouts given vehicle owners with the tests will identify suggested repairs.

If the owner can show proof repairs have been made and the vehicle flunks a second test, no further repairs will be required.

The Madison County testing stations are located at 1710 Vaughn Road (on the south side of Route 111) in Wood River and at 1240 W. Chain of Rocks Road in Mitchell.

The legislation establishing the program, passed in 1984, requires vehicle owners in some areas, based on postal zip codes, to have their vehicles tested while their neighbors in adjacent areas are exempt.

In Madison County, vehicle owners in Alton, East Alton, Wood River, Bethalto, Roxana, South Roxana, Hartford, Mitchell, Ponton Beach, Granite City, Madison and Venice are subject to the testing requirement.

Vehicle owners will be notified by the IEPA by mail when to bring in their vehicles for testing.

The IEPA's Sherman said he did not know precisely when the first batch of notices would go out. The agency earlier indicated it would be mailed starting last week.

to gain favorable treatment on matters concerning his property near Karandeff Lake, formerly Horseshoe Lake.

The conspiracy charged Nichols and Barton conspired to bribe the other county official, Shang Greathouse, president of the Metro East Sanitary District and a member of the county's Zoning Board of Appeals.

GREATHOUSE was indicted in 1983, but the state's attorney's office later dropped the charge.

In the Barton trial, Nichols was granted immunity.

Barton was not reappointed as supervisor of assessments and left office in 1984.

wanted his job back.

He also alleged Salmond sought special considerations on the job to conduct his personal affairs and made efforts to intimidate those who disagreed with him.

"VENICE IS ABOUT 80 percent black and this is the very reason education is important. Whites make sure their kids get an education and we blacks too should make sure our kids get a good education," Salmond said Thursday.

"Then I've got on with running our school district," Vickers said.

Although Salmond was allowed to address the board for several minutes, he protested having any time restriction. No time limit appeared to be enforced.

BOARD PRESIDENT Wilbert Glasper was tolerant during the exchange and finally stepped in, saying, "The door to this board room is always open."

Venice is not the only school district with its share of problems. Granite City and Madison have their share of problems, too, and there was some pistol play in Edwardsville (schools). We haven't had that here.

"We are a small city and a small district and we are trying to do something through the churches, with teenage pregnancy and drug problems, giving them help, as well as in the schools. Another place for some control also is at home," Glasper said.

"IF THE DAY COMES when you find cars not doing our job, then it's time to go to the polls," the board president said.

Salmond denied attempting to influence board members. "I have never tried to sway them to my way in their actions. I have tried to inform the board what is going on in the school," he added.

Salmond's wife, Alvestra, a member of the board, spoke briefly, defending some statements made by her husband.

At this point, Board Member George Wade said, "I read both the letters and this should never have come before this board. There was nothing about the board in them. If this continues I will entertain a motion that this meeting be adjourned."

"We've spent enough time on this and must move on to other business on the agenda," Glasper said, curtailing any further remarks.

State drunk boating laws have new teeth

Nobody says you can't have a few beers on your boat, just not an amendment to Illinois' boating law will make it costly for mariners who carry their drinking past the point of common sense.

The new law, which went into effect Jan. 1, sets a .1 percent blood alcohol content as the intoxication level for boaters as it is for automobile drivers.

The law also includes an implied consent provision. It holds that by operating a boat a person automatically agrees to submit to intoxication or drug-use testing if he or she is stopped by law enforcement officers who have reason to believe the operator is under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Conservation police officers currently are administering the long-standing forms of tests for sobriety and drug use, such as the walk-and-turn test and the finger-to-nose reflex procedures.

By mid-May, however, all of the Conservation Department's CPOs will have completed training in the Gaze Nystagmus test, a new method of determining probable intoxication or drug use from a suspect's eye movements.

Nystagmus is regarded as the best field test available. While they are in class, the officers also are being updated on improved versions of the three older tests.

Breath analysis tests will be given by local or state police, while blood and urine sample analyses, sometimes required to corroborate the other tests, are being done — and will continue to be done — at local hospitals.

Conservation police officers always have kept an eye peeled for drunken boaters, but arrest and conviction rates heretofore have been low. For the first time, CPOs have the tool for improving those statistics.

"In the past, we would attempt to convict a suspect based on our observations of the way he or she appeared or handled the boat, but we could not require the kinds of test that would corroborate our suspicions," said Deputy Chief James E. Getz. "We also lost cases because our state boating law did not specify at what point a suspect was legally drunk."

Both the new law and the severity of penalties of sufficient force, led to so many disappointments in attempting to prosecute that CPOs became reluctant to make such arrests, he said.

Getz, who authored the Operating Under the Influence amendment, said the amendment was approved by the General Assembly last year, noted the OUI statute doesn't prohibit boaters from drinking.

"Our goal was to promote safer boating by reducing the number of drunken boat operators on our lakes and rivers, and to convict those who cross the line between sobriety and intoxication. You might say, we just don't want boaters to go overboard with their drinking," he said.

What's in store for the operator who refuses to submit to any of the tests designed to determine whether he or she is drunk or on drugs? Loss of boating privileges in Illinois for a year.

The new law also carries these penalties:

• For a first conviction, an offender can face a fine of up to $1,000 and/or a year in jail, plus the suspension of his boat operating privileges for a minimum of one year. Repeat offenders can be hit proportionately harder.

• A repeat offender arrested on a violation resulting in a serious injury to another person can be jailed for one to three years, plus a fine set by the court, and lose boat operating privileges for a minimum of two years.

• In cases involving boating fatalities, the violator can be sentenced to prison for two to five years, plus a fine set by the court, and lose boat operating privileges for two or more years.

All waterfront, not just powerboats, are covered by the new regulations.

The Conservation Department's reluctance to reinstitute the Prohibition Era for boaters doesn't signify its advocacy of drinking and boating, Getz said.

"Boaters always are better off if they do not try to combine drinking and boat use."

The National Transportation Safety Board, the U.S. Coast Guard and state boating officials report that at least half of boating accidents and fatalities are alcohol-related," Getz said.

Operating a boat probably has a lot more variables involved than driving a car, he added. There are no centerlines or lanes to follow. There also is a greater amount of glare to contend with, little protection from the sun, and much more fatiguing noise, vibration, motion and wind. Boaters usually spend longer periods in the boat than drivers do in a car, he noted.

"When you add alcohol to these stresses, you reduce the operator's reaction and observation abilities and produce an impaired boater who is all the more dangerous," Getz said.

"If you see a boater who appears to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs, report him promptly to the nearest Department of Conservation police officer."

As with any law enforcement agency, our relatively few officers cannot be everywhere at once and we need the public's help in spotting those people," he said.

State pay raises are recommended

The Illinois Compensation Review Board Wednesday recommended a two-step cost-of-living pay raise for about 500 state employees, including the governor, whose salary would be boosted to more than $93,000 annually by July 1, 1987.

Gov. James Thompson is now paid $58,000 but, last year, the review board mandated to set salaries of state employees not covered by union contracts — voted to raise the salary to $85,000 annually.

Thompson, however, could not receive the boost in mid-term, so his $85,000 salary could not go into effect until next Jan. 1. The second step of the cost-of-living raise would bring the governor's salary to $93,266.

The board voted a 4.5 percent cost-of-living increase, effective July 1, and another 5 percent to go into effect July 1, 1987, except for 11 positions for which board members made special arrangements.

The 4.5 percent raise is to go into effect July 1 for all non-elective positions. Raises for these holding elected positions cannot go into effect until after the next election on Nov. 4, since pay boosts cannot be granted during a term already started.

Other elected constitutional officers would get raises similar to those for the governor: the lieutenant governor would receive $65,835 by July 1987; the secretary of state and the attorney general each would get $82,293; and the comptroller and treasurer each would receive $71,321.

By July 1, 1987, each member of the General Assembly would receive an annual salary of $35,661, compared to the present $32,500.

State Supreme Court justices would receive $93,739 annually as compared with their present $85,000; Appellate Court judges would be paid $87,780 as compared with their present $80,000; and Circuit Court judges would receive $80,099 as compared with their present $73,000.

Associate judges would get $74,631 as compared with their present $68,000.

Among the exceptions to the cost-of-living pay increase was the auditor general, Robert Cronson, presently earning $60,000 annually. The board voted to recommend a pay increase of $5,000 annually to him beginning July 1.

Cronson appeared before the board Wednesday to ask a pay increase to bring his salary to $75,000 yearly, pointing out that — unlike other constitutional officers in the state — the auditor general is mandated not to earn money from outside sources.

Cronson also asked that his deputy auditor general receive a pay increase, which he suggested should bring his salary to between 10 and 15 percent less than that of the auditor general.

The board voted to recommend a pay increase of $7,000 for the deputy, which would bring the salary to $57,000 annually rather than the present $50,000.

Expansion noted by First Bank

Directors re-elected at the Annual meeting of shareholders of First Granite City National Bank were Earl C. Buenger, Ted L. Eiderman, Dr. Christ V. Geroff, Joseph Glik, Thomas E. Holloway, S.E. Pershall Jr., Carl A. Ranft, John W. Reese, William D. Swanson, Dr. George T. Wilkins Jr., Melvin C. Wilmsmeyer and Leonard E. Yelton. In addition, Wilbert Engleke was appointed to the advisory board.

First Bank Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Melvin C. Wilmsmeyer reviewed the financial highlights of the bank for 1985. Assets increased by 6.3 percent from $140.7 million to $149.5 million at year-end.

Deposits increased by 7.1 percent during 1985. Wilmsmeyer related that "loan demand remains quite strong, total loans having increased by 10.1 percent during 1985 following an increase of 15.4 percent in 1984. The additional loan volume reflects an upswing in local economic conditions."

Net income rose from $1.30 million in 1984 to $1.65 million in 1985. Wilmsmeyer said, "The substantial yet gradual decline in interest rate levels during 1985 contributed significantly to the company's exceptional earnings growth."

"Though interest rate levels have continued to drop during the first quarter of 1986, the positive impact will be less significant for the entire year, as these most recent declines have begun to impact returns on the income side."

"The bank's ability to increase earnings in 1986 will thus be determined principally by our success in maintaining asset growth."

"On March 31, 1986, the ratio of primary capital (net worth) to total assets was 8.1 percent, well in excess of regulators' minimum guideline of 5.5 percent."

"Loan quality is monitored on a continuing basis. The bank considers itself fortunate that it is not involved in energy lending and that its agricultural loan portfolio is performing satisfactorily."

President Holloway said, "Plans are now underway for First Bank to expand and renovate its Bellefonte Village offices."

"The 'Rescue 24' unit there will be repositioned to enable access from an enlarged front entry foyer, allowing customers additional safety and privacy in completing their transactions.

"In addition, a rear entrance to the lobby will be created and will include a mini-lobby area that will maintain expanded hours."

Holloway concluded that "these changes will not only enhance customer convenience but create a more pleasing atmosphere in which to do business."

Holloway reminded the group of a new "Rescue 24" drive-through unit near Illinois 111 in Pontoon Beach. A ribbon-cutting ceremony was held April 20.

Upon approval by the State of Illinois, First Bank's new "Rescue 24 Anytime Banking" proprietary unit will soon become operational, allowing the customers of First Bank and Colonial Bank to use each bank's "Rescue 24" interchangeably.

"This will be an added convenience to customers of both banks," Holloway said.

At the organizational meeting of directors of the bank, two promotions and a new appointment were announced.

Albert G. Hudzik and Mike Kulier were named vice presidents, and Eldon C. Frisse joined the bank as an assistant vice president in the Consumer Loan Department.

Friss has served the last seven years as an assistant vice president, consumer lending, with the Edwardsville National Bank and Trust Co. He and his wife, Sally, and son, Jeff, are residents of Granite City.

Kulier joined First Bank in March 1983 and, until his promotion, served as assistant vice president and compliance officer with primary responsibilities in the Commercial Loan Department. Prior to joining First Bank, Kulier served for 15 years as a bank examiner with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Prior to joining First Bank in December 1982, Hudzik had served for nine years as comptroller of the City of Madison. Until this most recent promotion, Hudzik had served as assistant vice president and secretary of the board of directors, in addition to heading the bank's Financial Services Department.

Other officers named were: Wilmsmeyer, chairman and chief executive officer; Holloway, president; Howard L. Etherton, senior vice president and cashier; T.J. Conrad, vice president and director of data processing;

Earl G. Dotzauer, vice president and comptroller; John H. Tallgren, vice president and trust officer; Elmer L. Wortham, vice president and security officer; Herbert S. Camren and John A. Cooper, vice presidents; Merle Rose, real estate loan officer; Vernon Dale Smith, assistant vice president, data processing; Edward Uherick and Randy E. Vollmar, assistant vice presidents; Jay B. Fineshriber and Frank J. Kierski, assistant cashiers.

Mattie L. Pope, manager, Bellefonte facility; Laveada M. Knobbe, assistant trust officer; Terry Giles, consumer loan officer; James Townley, director of marketing; Gregory Jones, auditor; and Larry Wiegand, electronic data processing auditor.

MidAmerica and Landmark bank chains to merge

Landmark Bancshares Corp., a Missouri bank holding company, and MidAmerica BancSystem Inc., a bank holding company headquartered in southern Illinois, have announced a plan to merge.

S. Lee Kling, chairman and chief executive officer of Landmark, and James B. Watt, chairman and chief executive officer of MidAmerica, made the announcement.

While Landmark will be the surviving entity, management of MidAmerica will continue to have responsibility for Illinois operations and growth.

Watt and one other MidAmerica director, James W. McRoberts, will join the Landmark board and Watt will serve on Landmark's corporate management committee. MidAmerica directors, officers and employees will continue in their current positions.

The merger is contingent on Missouri and Illinois regional banking laws becoming effective. Missouri's statute has been approved by both the House and Senate and is awaiting the governor's signature. Illinois' law will be effective July 1.

The merger also is subject to financial and operational review and requires approval by state and federal regulatory agencies. Final action is projected for late 1986.

Landmark, based in St. Louis, has assets of $1.02 billion and owns six banks with 24 locations in Missouri's three metropolitan areas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield.

MidAmerica, based in Fairview Heights, has assets of $223 million and owns six banks with 11 sites in Illinois, 10 of which are in the bi-state metropolitan area.

MidAmerica also owns a trust company and an insurance agency operating in Illinois.

The combined organization's 35 locations serving Missouri and Illinois include 29 in the St. Louis bi-state area.

Rights of drunk-driving victims being expanded

Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar said last week that Victims' Rights Week is a good time for all to learn about "important new rights" given to drunk-driving victims under laws effective this year.

He said new DUI laws that were effective Jan. 1 give accident victims and their families greater participation in court proceedings. "They also require judges to state their reasons for sentencing offenders in any case involving personal injury or death."

"The new law gives Illinois one of the nation's most effective drunk-driving laws. Rights for the victim are a key feature of those laws," Edgar said.

"Victims are now guaranteed a right to have their views heard in court. "Thousands of families have been devastated by the loss of loved ones in traffic accidents involving alcohol. Every family, driver and vehicle passenger should know his or her rights," Edgar said.

Effective this year:

• Victims must be notified of all court dates.
• Victims are permitted to present written statements to the court.

• Victims have the right to make oral statements at a drunk-driving offender's sentencing hearing.

• Judges are required to state — for the record — their reasons for sentencing an offender in any case involving personal injury or death.

Anti-smoking bill gets committee OK

Legislation to restrict smoking in most public areas and workplaces was approved by an Illinois House committee last week.

The "Clean Indoor Air Act" was endorsed by the House Executive Committee on a 10-5 vote and now goes to the full House for consideration. Virtually identical legislation also passed committee last year but could muster only 50 of the 60 votes needed on the House floor.

More than 30 major health organizations endorsed the bill in committee April 22. Representatives of the American Cancer Society, Illinois State Medical Society and Interagency Council on Smoking and Disease argued there was growing evidence of passive or "second-hand" tobacco smoke causing health problems for non-smokers.

Sponsor Rep. Robert Terzich, D-Chicago, a Chicago firefighter and ex-smoker who has been attempting to get similar legislation passed for several years, argued that 30 other states have such legislation and it would not require any expensive enforcement, since most people would comply with the "law out of common courtesy."

He and other witnesses argued that public opinion polls have indicated strong support for such legislation in Illinois.

Opposing the bill were the tobacco industry, restaurant and hotel associations and the bowling alley proprietors association.

They argued it would give too much power to the Illinois Department of Public Health to regulate them and could result in a loss of business. They contended private industry should be left to voluntarily restrict smoking in establishments, based on customers' needs.

A Georgetown University professor who is a consultant on indoor pollution was also brought in by the tobacco industry to testify. She contended there has not been scientific evidence of a link between passive smoking and health problems. Another consultant sponsored by the industry testified that only 4 percent of the typical indoor air pollution found in a building was traced to tobacco smoke.

The legislation would permit smoking only in designated areas in "any enclosed area used by the public or serving as a place of employment," to be enclosed offices occupied exclusively by smokers and places of work "not usually frequented by the general public."

It would also give the Department of Public Health authority to "restrict or prohibit smoking in those places of work where the close proximity of workers or the inadequacy of ventilation causes smoke pollution detrimental to the health and comfort of nonsmoking employees."

Terzich amended the bill, as he did last year, to exempt taverns. Exemptions "privately be enclosed offices occupied exclusively by smokers" and places of work "not usually frequented by the general public."

To help convince the House of the need for the amendment, Thompson said he has formed the Citizens Against Dangerous Smoking Coalition, a criminal justice group that joined him in calling for House approval.

Thompson, in seeking to illustrate the need for the amendment, pointed to the case of convicted murderer Alton Coleman as an example of how, if the courts had wider authority to deny bail release, society could be protected.

More power to deny bail urged

The House of Representatives was urged last week to allow Illinois voters to decide if judges should have greater authority in denying bail to accused felons who pose a threat to the community.

"Current law in Illinois needs to be changed. As it stands now, judges can only consider if the accused will appear at trial in determining bail."

The courts, as those who have joined me in this effort would agree, must be allowed more discretion in granting bail," said Gov. James R. Thompson.

"But to give the criminal justice system greater authority, new law is needed. The Illinois Constitution will have to be amended, and that legal route has led to the House. I urge the House Judiciary Committee to approve Senate Joint Resolution (SJR) 22."

Under present law, the court can consider the danger to the community or the protection of society in determining whether to allow release on bail but only in cases in which the crime charged may result in either life imprisonment or capital punishment.

The proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution would give the court the legal ability to hear evidence that the offender "would pose a real and present threat to the physical safety of any person."

SJR 22 must be approved by a three-fifths vote in the House by May 3 in order for it to be placed on the ballot in November. The Senate approved it Oct. 31, 1985, by a vote of 46-6.

To help convince the House of the need for the amendment, Thompson said he has formed the Citizens Against Dangerous Smoking Coalition, a criminal justice group that joined him in calling for House approval.

Thompson, in seeking to illustrate the need for the amendment, pointed to the case of convicted murderer Alton Coleman as an example of how, if the courts had wider authority to deny bail release, society could be protected.

Coleman, the governor said, was indicted on March 5, 1984, for taking indecent liberties with a child. Bond was set at $200,000 but was reduced later that month to $20,000 and Coleman made bail.

At the time, the state could only argue that the likelihood Coleman would flee was great, based on previous convictions for battery, robbery and indecent liberty.

On May 29, one day before his next scheduled court appearance, Coleman abducted 9-year-old Verne Wheat in Evanston, Ill., with his girlfriend, Dera Brown, began a two-month, six-state crime spree that left six dead and several others with serious injuries that were the result of felonies Coleman and Brown are accused of committing.

"If the bail amendment had been in place two years ago, perhaps Coleman could have been kept behind bars. His case is a vivid example of the type of person who should be denied bail release, who should be kept off the streets because he is a threat to society," said Thompson.

Joining in pressing for House action on SJR 22 was John Davidson of Springfield, who sponsored it with Adeline Geo-Karris of Zion and George Sangmeister of Mokena in the Senate. Also on hand was Rep. Thomas McCracken, Downers Grove, who is sponsoring the proposed amendment in the House with Rep. Thomas Homer of Canton.

Coalition members who called for House approval of the constitutional change were Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, Joel Gingiss, president of the Chicago Crime Commission, Patrick Healy, executive director of the Chicago Crime Commission, and Edwin Bishop, executive assistant to Chicago Police Superintendent Fred Rice Jr.

Also joining the governor were Lake County State's Attorney

Fred Foreman, John Dineen, president of the Fraternal Order of Police in Chicago, Hobart "Curly" Rogers of the Police Benevolent and Protective Association, Bud Erber, executive secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Police Association, Chuck Whelpley, president of the Illinois

Police Association, Carl Dobbs, third vice president of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, and Bill Roberts, Sangamon County state's attorney.

Thompson served as co-chairman of the U.S. Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Crime, whose 1981 report was the basis for the federal Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984 (CCCA).

Stevenson leaves ticket, files suit

Adlai Stevenson withdrew April 23 as the Democratic nominee for governor and sued for the right to start an independent race for the office.

The March primary winner, a former U.S. senator, did not want to remain on the ballot to run as a team member with Mark Fairchild, lieutenant governor nominee. Fairchild and Janice Hart, Democratic nominee for secretary of state, are followers of Lyndon LaRouche, whose political stands Stevenson condemns.

Sen. Vince Demuzio, Illinois Democratic chairman, said the party would pick a replacement for Stevenson.

Stevenson's suit challenges the December 1985 deadline on filing independent candidacies. Recovering from a back injury received in a fall from a horse, he is known to plan to add independent candidacies for lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

If an independent approach fails, Stevenson plans a 10-candidate third-party ticket.

Development bill advances

Compromise legislation to create a new Southwestern Illinois Development Authority to finance economic development projects in Madison and St. Clair counties advanced to the Illinois House floor Tuesday.

The House Executive Committee approved the bill sponsored by Rep. Jim McPike, R-Alton, on a 1-1 vote, after McPike announced a compromise had been reached with Gov. James Thompson's administration on control of the new agency.

McPike's original bill would have provided for five members of nine-member authority governing board to be appointed jointly by the chairmen of the Madison and St. Clair county boards. The governor had sought legislation in which he would have appointed all the members of the board.

The compromise that went to the House floor provides for an 11-member board composed of the directors of three state agencies (appointed by the governor), four public members appointed by the governor and four public members appointed by the two county board chairmen. The compromise board composition gives the governor "control," McPike said.

Deputy Governor Jerry Blakemore joined McPike in endorsing the amended bill before the committee.

The legislation was also strengthened to provide state backing of bonds issued by the authority for industrial, commercial and recreational projects.

McPike said he had a trade off in the compromise and the governor, through his appointments to the authority, would be assured that only economically viable projects would go forward.

McPike said the original impetus for the authority came from proposals to build a new domed stadium in Illinois for the St. Louis football Cardinals, and to build a major international auto raceway in St. Clair County.

In his committee testimony, McPike emphasized the use of the authority as a means of selling industrial revenue bonds for development of the East St. Louis riverfront. Because of that city's financial problems, it could not sell such bonds on its own, he said.

However, McPike said he expected the authority would become the major vehicle for new development in the entire area.

"I would think there is a major project proposed in Alton and they need financing help, they would probably go to the authority instead of to the city in the future," he said.

The legislation does not give any taxing powers to the proposed new agency, but local governments within the two-county area would be authorized to levy property taxes to support authority projects if they chose to do so.

A provision giving the authority "quick-take" condemnation powers was opposed by the Illinois Association of Counties, whose representative argued it could result in inequitable treatment of existing property owners in the two counties.

Local governments have 45 days to disapprove any project proposed in their jurisdiction by the authority.

OchoaOld heroes
often fall
very hard

Picking up one of the St. Louis dailies this week, someone pointed out there were more stories about former Cardinals than present ones on that particular front page.

One of the items dealt with Ken Reitz, the former Redbird third baseman. It seems the "Zamboni Machine" is about to be sucked up by the authorities in Jefferson County (Mo.) for writing over $1,000 in bad checks.

Reitz, who was traded from St. Louis to the Chicago Cubs in the Bruce Sutter deal, was named in a warrant last week after writing the checks to pay somebody work done to his car.

At one time, Reitz was one of the most popular Cardinals. However, No. 44 has been in and out of baseball for several years. At last report, Reitz was playing minor league ball in San Jose.

The second story was about Darrell Porter, the former catcher released by the club over the winter. Porter is now a part-time player with the Texas Rangers.

He performs "not to talk about his years in St. Louis."

Porter was never a matinee idol at Busch Stadium. But in 1982 he did perform heroically and was the MVP in the World Series and National League Championship Series.

"It was the most fun I had playing baseball in my whole career," draws Porter in "The St. Louis Cardinal — The Movie," which highlights the Series.

Porter now claims to be "fired up" again and is glad to be still in the game.

The third story was about Keith Hernandez. The first baseman is promoting his new book, "If At First: A Season With The New York Mets."

He was to make an appearance at a St. Louis shopping center to autograph copies of the book while the Mets are in town to play the Cards.

No question Hernandez was a Cardinal favorite. He was the co-winner of the MVP award in 1979 when he led the league in hitting and is a Gold Glove performer in the field.

However, in 1983, the Cardinals traded Hernandez to the Mets for pitchers Neil Allen and Rick Ownbey.

Allen, whose efforts did not even sway his mates to vote him a share of the 1985 postseason prize money, is gone. Ownbey has been used some this year.

Reasons for the Hernandez trade are a popular topic in the saloons. Many feel it was his connection to drug use. Hernandez says Whitey Herzog just didn't like him.

The bottom line is that Whitey runs things and the trade is history.

Old wounds, however, heal slow. Hernandez hurt the St. Louis fans with his remarks in the press. He is now booed everytime he is introduced at the ball park.

But now Hernandez has written (See HEROES, page 8B)

ReGina Banks, a graduate of Madison High School, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Banks, a 5-11 forward, is a junior college transfer from John A. Logan College. Over a two-year period, Banks collected 778 points and 515 rebounds. She graduates as the school's No. 4 all-time scorer and rebounder.

ReGina has tremendous quickness," said SIU Coach Cindy Scott. "That's primarily the reason she is such a good defensive player and rebounder. She can play small forward or at the post position."

Described by Logan Coach Gary Barton as the school's "best defensive player ever," Banks helped lead the Lady Vols to a 36-3 record, which included an 8-1 mark in postseason play.

Last season, Banks averaged 12.1 points a game and 7.5 rebounds while sparking Logan to a third place finish in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

Banks garnered 40 percent of her rebounds on the offensive end of the boards. She had 65 steals and shot 44 percent from the floor.

Warrior hurlers tame Tigers 6-0

EDWARDSVILLE — Granite City mixed all the necessary ingredients together Friday night.

The recipe was a chef's delight and resulted in a 6-0 win over Edwardsville at LeClaire Field in a non-conference game. Granite City is now 12-10. Edwardsville fell to 12-8.

Jeff Zukas and Matt Roe combined to limit the Tigers to just five hits and the Warriors played good defense as Granite City extended its streak to 12 straight innings without allowing its opponents a run.

On Thursday night, Ernie Gray pitched a one-hitter against Belleville West as the Warriors won 10-0 in five innings and improved to 5-1 in the Southwestern Conference.

"We can control our own destiny," said Warrior coach Bob Stegmeyer. "If we can win all of our remaining games, we will be co-champions."

Against Edwardsville, Zukas went five innings allowing just four hits and walking one. He fanned five before retiring.

Roe, the team's leading hitter, relieved in the sixth and gave up a leadoff single to Dan Long. But a double play, started by himself, got Granite City out of the inning.

In the seventh, the Tigers threatened as the first two batters reached on walks. However, Roe fanned the next two and got John Bailey to bounce back to the mound.

With the win, Zukas improved his record to 2-3. Zukas was helped by some good defense, especially by third baseman Steve Davis in the fourth.

Having already been charged with two errors, Davis took a sure hit away from Tony Lockett when he dove to his left and speared the ball and threw the Tiger runner out. Had the ball gotten through, Chris Burns, who was on second, would likely have scored.

Another Warrior who broke a slump was Doug Partney. He was three-for-three with a triple, double, single and two RBIs.

"It's good to see him come out of it because we need his bat in the lineup," Stegmeyer said.

Edwardsville had its chances. They left the bases loaded in the seventh, had two runners picked off and hit into a double play.

"You can't have two miracles in two nights," said Tigers coach Tom Pile. On Thursday, Edwardsville nipped Belleville Althoff 9-8. The Tigers are still short-handed after 14 players — including five starters — were suspended earlier this month by school officials after an alleged stealing incident after a game at Busch Stadium.

Among the starters forced to sit out were the first baseman, shortstop, third baseman, rightfielder and centerfielder.

The players are eligible to be reinstated next week, but Pile's not saying when they will be back in the lineup.

Granite City scored what turned out to be the winning run in the first. Jamie Hogan singled and took third on a hit by Davis. Shortstop Todd Hinterser scored Hogan with a sacrifice fly to centerfield.

In the fourth, Partney's triple scored Billy Moore, running for Roe who had walked.

Prior to Partney's blast, Jim Chomko lofted one to center and Moore appeared to be doubled off first. However, Tom Fayall's throw to the base bounced in the dirt for an error.

Granite City's other run came when Todd Adamitis drew a bases loaded walk scoring Partney.

Partney was at it again in the fifth. His two-out double, scored Hinterser, who had singled to start the inning.

A double by Jamie Hogan in the sixth scored his brother, Tim, who had walked, making the score 5-0. Granite got its final run on Hinterser's sacrifice fly that scored Adamitis.

Edwardsville used three pitchers. Cecil Bell started, pitching the first three innings.

The Warriors were to play a doubleheader on Saturday at Centrailla and will host Althoff on Monday, April 28 at 4 p.m.

Girls' 7th inning rally comes up short against East

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Every run means something. Runs that at first appear to be meaningless towards the end of a game can turn out to be the margin of victory.

Just ask the Granite City girls softball team. Trailing Belleville East 2-0 in the seventh inning, Warrior pitcher Amy Moss had retired the first two hitters, and it appeared Granite City would take their final swings trailing by two.

But two hits gave the Lancers a chance, and Dana Farley tripped off the glove of left fielder Amber Marsh to score two runs and give East a 4-0 lead.

With the Warriors shut out through six innings, it didn't appear to mean much, but it turned out to mean everything as the Warriors scored twice in the bottom of the seventh, but fell short, 4-2.

The loss dropped Granite City's record to 5-8 overall and 3-2 in the Southwestern Conference. The Lancers improved to 3-4 and 2-1 in the SWC.

It was a well-played game all the way, but it turned out to be a couple of plays the Warriors didn't make that decided the outcome.

"This game was played the way fast-pitch softball is supposed to be played," said Warrior Coach Jim Davis. "If my girls play like this all the time, I have nothing to complain about."

Still, Farley's triple in the seventh was just off the glove of Marsh, who had to go back on the ball. It possibly could have been caught, but it would have been a great play if she had.

"It was a tough chance," Davis said. "In a situation like that, with their eighth place hitter up, we were playing in a little bit. We didn't want her to drop one in there. Amber went back on the ball well, but she didn't have time to camp under it. I can't blame her at all."

The Lancers' first run also came on a Granite City misplay. With two out in the first, third baseman Denise Luge tripled over the head of Tracy Gaudette in center field. Then designated hitter Rhonda Richards hit an easy grounder to second baseman Cathy Lewis. But the sophomore hurried the throw to first. It was low and Alicia Melton couldn't handle it.

"Cathy's done a good job for us," Davis said. "She gets in front of the ball well, but sometimes she lets up on her throws."

For a while, it appeared that unearned run would be enough to beat Moss, who again pitched very well. She allowed only one other baserunner in the next four innings as both Keri Holtkamp (third base) and Karen Sykes (shortstop) made good defensive plays.

The Warriors, meanwhile, were hitting the ball hard off Lancer pitcher Rhonda Reifschneider, but their line drives were right at fielders.

Their best chance was in the third, when Lewis singled to right with two outs. Right fielder Kelly Knolhoff was playing shallow and almost threw her out at first, but threw wildly, allowing Lewis to go to second. Gaudette followed with another shot between first and second. But this time Knolhoff fielded the ball and threw Gaudette out.

"That cut off a run," Davis said. "You teach the right fielder to play shallow and try to get runners at first base. She's obviously well-coached."

East added a second run in the sixth got a bunt hit, stole second, advanced to third on an infield out and scored on another bunt single by Teri Bova.

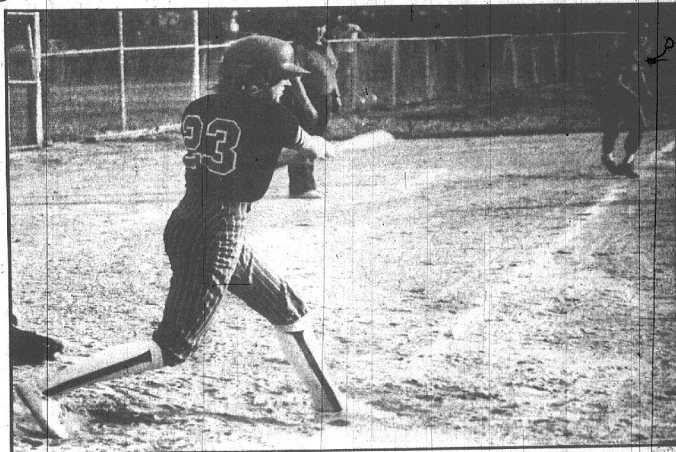

After Farley's triple got the Lancers two more in the seventh, the Warriors finally found some holes in their seventh. Holtkamp and Moss singled, but Tammy LeVault struck out. Melton then came through with a double to right center, scoring Holtkamp and sending Moss to third.

Reifschneider got Kim Corey on a foul pop, but Marsh battled to a 3-2 count and singled up the middle to score Moss and send Melton to third.

Lewis, however, ended the game by popping out to the shortstop.

"We didn't quit," Davis said. "We haven't quit all year. We've

Madison's Banks
signs with SIU-C

CARBONDALE — ReGina Banks, a graduate of Madison High School, has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Banks, a 5-11 forward, is a junior college transfer from John A. Logan College. Over a two-year period, Banks collected 778 points and 515 rebounds. She graduates as the school's No. 4 all-time scorer and rebounder.

ReGina has tremendous quickness," said SIU Coach Cindy Scott. "That's primarily the reason she is such a good defensive player and rebounder. She can play small forward or at the post position."

Described by Logan Coach Gary Barton as the school's "best defensive player ever," Banks helped lead the Lady Vols to a 36-3 record, which included an 8-1 mark in postseason play.

Last season, Banks averaged 12.1 points a game and 7.5 rebounds while sparking Logan to a third place finish in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament.

Banks garnered 40 percent of her rebounds on the offensive end of the boards. She had 65 steals and shot 44 percent from the floor.

During her senior year at

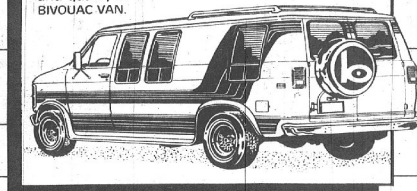

ReGina Banks

Madison, Banks helped lead the Trojannes to the Class A sectionals. She was also a standout runner in track. She will likely major in fashion merchandising at SIU.

Banks chose SIU-C over Illinois, Michigan State, Miami, Florida International and a number of other Division II schools. She has played in the Prairie State Games and in AAU competition.

Wind brings bass and lifts my spirits

By Larry Bulus
Staff writer

With wind gusts hitting 40 mph the afternoon was turning into a real hot-batter. There are, however, two things I do like about wind when fishing. First, like rain, it tends to keep many fishermen home, especially boat fishermen. On a small lake or farm pond all that's needed to kill the fishing for everyone is one clumsy boat-hander hitting stumps, logs, brush and, in general, spooking the fish.

The other advantage of wind is that it makes for better early spring fishing than a dead calm. Spinnerbaits, especially, seem to produce far better when there's a good chop on the water.

The waves at the south end were still whitecapping, for the wind was but partially broken by a thin line of trees. I would not have dared wading in strange waters under such conditions but I knew there were no drop-offs, sunken stumps, ditches or submerged obstacles along this route. I knew this because during a drought several summers ago the lake level fell to where this entire stretch was exposed, showing a gradually tapering beach-like area its full length.

I waded out about 60 feet and began tossing a yellow-skirted tandem spinner far out over the murky water, holding the rod tip well above horizontal and retrieving steadily to keep the bait from sinking too low and fouling in gooey algae. Like the spokes of an open fan, I would cast over all the water from left to right, fishing from deeper water on my left to the shoreline shallows on my right, before slowly wading along and repeating the procedure.

My first fish, which hit near shore, was a spunky 11-inch cat I released.

A dozen or so casts later I caught another bass, this one nudging two pounds. When I followed that up with a three-quarter pound black crappie I smugly figured I'd have a string of fish before I reached the dam.

But I didn't get another hit all the way down that bank. For a while I debated hiking to the southwest corner of the lake and fishing down it as I had here, with my back to the wind. Instead, I hiked a half mile through the woods to the smaller lake.

At the small lake I hiked to the south end. Again, I began casting from deep to shallower water, though making most casts where I had the greatest confidence, in the deeper water over old moss beds.

I was into feeding fish immediately and soon caught three that bested two pounds and lost a larger one that rolled just out of reach and somehow slipped the hook.

But my day was made when a real drag-screacher struck the spinnerbait, pulling the rod tip down and ripping line from the reel. The lunker put on a display of long runs and bulldog strength that tested my tackle and my ability to keep the rod tip up. The fish's last maneuver was to roll ponderously on the surface, the sign of a last ditch effort by a tired fish. Two more cranks of the reel and I had it within reach, clamping a vise-like grip on its massive lower jaw with thumb and forefinger, then lifting five and, three-quarter pounds of largemouth bass.

More than a dozen fish fell for the tandem spinner that afternoon, but I kept only the lunker for myself and three others for Tabot's table. When I'd first stopped at his home just after noon he'd admonished me, "Now, if you catch any, don't be tossin' all of 'em back, dang it. I ain't hadda mess o' fresh fish yet this year."

Later, in his yard, when he saw the three nice bass I'd kept for him, he ran water into a washtub, dropped the fish in, and cackled gleefully when they began swimming around. "Man, you talk about fresh! We'll have 'em for supper this evenin'."

lost close games to Belleville West, Wood River and East. If we had won those, our record would be reversed and we might be in a little better position to win the close ones. It's always easier to win close games when you have done it before."

Moss allowed seven hits and walked no one. She struck out three. Ruffenbender allowed only five hits (four of them in the seventh), struck out five and walked only one.

Davis was limited in making substitutions because he had only nine players available. Two players were out with minor injuries and another was on a field trip. But the coach said he probably wouldn't have used any pinch-hitters in the last inning anyway.

"It was a terrific game," Davis said. "East made the plays when they had some balls hit hard off them. We have to score more than two runs to win, but I'm not disappointed. We're playing pretty well."

The Warriors had a doubleheader in Mt. Vernon on Saturday. They then play at Roxana Tuesday and host O'Fallon Wednesday before playing in a tournament in Cahokia this weekend.

• Heroes

a book, a diary of the season. Promotional ads say this: "If wasn't a typical season. A pending divorce, a players' strike and revelations in courtroom from Pittsburgh."

What a materialistic society this is. A ballplayer admits to using drugs, but before admitting that he is granted immunity from prosecution. He tells all in a courtroom and he apologizes.

But that's just the start. The commissioner then fines Hernandez and orders the player to give 10 percent of his salary to charity or be suspended for one year. After beefing about the penalty and threatening to file a formal complaint, Hernandez pays up. Now the book.

"If At First..." may be a fine baseball book (I've only read published portions), but the timing seems to be bad.

Baseball players used to be role models for young kids. Making money off your personal problems is not a role model.

Perhaps the heroes have died. They have been replaced with funny-looking mascots and AstroTurf.

Like the hard pink bubble gum that comes with baseball cards, heroes don't stay around that long and quickly lose their flavor.
